next winter, but that it practically removes Boies from the list of Western candidates for the presidency in 1896. The judgment of the party leaders here approved the first declaration of Governor Boles, last summer, that he would not be a candidate for Governor at the fall election, and when he finally reconsidered and entered the race for a third term it was felt that he had everything to lose and little to gain from the campaign that was to follow. It was recalled that even the popular Foraker was unable, in Ohio, to stell and per ular sentiment against a third term in when the Republicans of Iowa reproached the Democrats with departing from one of the cardinal principles of their party in nominating a man for a third term, they placed their opponents on the defensive practically from the very beginning.

The Populists still contend that later returns will show that their party has made. a far better showing in various States than is conceded them in the earlier dispatches. In Virginia they succeeded in terrorizing the Democrats for the past two weeks, but the leaders of the latter party rallied from their panic in time to make unprecedented efforts to get out their full vote, and it looks as though the Populists would have stood a much better chance for victory by making a still fight. The Pouplist Senators and Representatives who are in the city are anxiously waiting the latest news from Nebraska and Kansas, and expect cheering news from the official returns.

There is one element of the defeated Democracy that views the general Republican victories with a philosophic resignation that amounts almost to satisfaction. This element comprises the free coinage Democrats who have so bitterly reproached President Cleveland for forcing the repeal bill through Congress, and who have for weeks been predicting that the administration's disloyalty to the Democratic national platform would be rebuked by a crushing defeat in all the great State elections this fall. These. men now point to the Democratic defeat as the result of the party's departure from its faith in the recent extraordinary session, and are already preparing to coax the majority back to the good old orthodox faith when the regular session convenes in December. Chairman Bland will introduce his free coinage bill at the first bill day of the session, and the free coinage men are expected to be a unit in demanding its prompt consideration.

The President did not show that intense interest in the returns last night that would have indicated a confidence in Democratic victory. Early in the evening the President went out to his country home instead of remaining at the executive mansion, as is usual on election nights, and the returns he received were only those of sufficient importance to be telephoned out to Woodley by Private Secretary Thurber, as the latter received them from the telegraph wire at the White House. Several members of the Cabinet drove out to the President's house early in the evening, but none of these gentlemen, as indicated above, would give any expression of the causes that led up to the general defeat. The President was doubtless not discouraged by the Democratic defeat, as he has constantly repeated to those members of his party who have been predicting Democratic defeat as the result of the administration's financial policy that time would vindicate the party and show that the majority was right in demanding the immediate and unconditional repeal of the Sherman act.

VICTORY FOR PROTECTION.

Governor McKinley's View of the Landslide in the Buckeye State. COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 8 .- In reply to an inquiry as to the causes for the result in Ohio Governor McKinley to-day stated that Lawrence T. Neal, the Democratic candidate for Governor, was recognized as much as a free trader as he (McKinley) was an advocate of protection. At the Chicago national convention last year that nominated Cleveland for President Neal was the author of the anti-tariff plank, and had it inserted in the platform in place of the plank reported by Cleveland's friends on the committee on resolutions. In his opening speech of this campaign at Newark, O., Mr. Neal not only said that his campaign would be fought on the lines of the Chicago platform, which had been incorporated into the State platform, on which he stood, but he also so clearly defined his position boldly as a free-trader that the two candidates were recognized throughout the canvass as embodying in their views this issue as it had never before been so distinctly presented to the people. "The next day after Neal's speech at Newark," said Governor McKinley, "I accepted his interpretation of the issue as represented by us respectively, and of the United States are against the we fought it out on that line in over one hundred public meetings of each candidate dressed in accordance with the challenge at Newark and its prompt acceptance." Covernor McKinley said the returns would now speak more forcibly than he was able to do, and he knew of nothing that he could add, except to say that heretofore the campaigns have been conducted with complications on issues, but that this time the fight was centered on protection, with the leader of free trade clearly defined in his position and the tariff issue fully presented at every meeting of all parties in the canvass.

Governor McKinley's office was thronged to-day, and it was impossible for him personally to keep up reading all the congratulatory telegrams. These dispatches came from shops and business circles as well as politicians. The scene in the office of Governor McKinley last night was very different from the scene in the same place a year ago. Then the champion of protection of American industries sat surrounded by a few friends, dismally regarding the returns, which indicated that the cause for which he had so strenuously battled had gone in defeat. Last night he sat in the same chair listening complacently to the reading of returns, which told that the cause of protection was again triumphant. A year ago the doors of the Governor's office were closed at midnight and none but friends were admitted; last night both doors were open and everybody was welcome, even the boy with the horn being tolerated. Last year it was a funeral scene with marks of sorrow on every countenance; last night it was a scene of rejoicing, and every face was wreathed in | iff question undoubtedly exerted a powersmiles. The same telegraph instrument in the corner clicked off the messages and they were read from the same table, but there had been a change. McKinley did not retire until 4 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Crisp Says Local Causes.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 8 .- Hon. Chas. F. Crisp, Speaker of the House of Representatives, spent noon to-day in Nashville en route home. He kept himself secluded, and but few knew he was here. In reply to questions concerning yesterday's elections he said that he did not ascribe the result to any feeling of opposition to the Democratic administration, but purely because of local causes. In his opinion, the Democratic party had only to carry out the pledges of its platform, and the results of Tuesday would be forgotten before the next presidential contest. "The tariff bill will be reported when Congress convenes next month," said Mr. Crisp, "and it will be a clean-cut measure. It will provide for a revenue tariff, and will make sweeping reductions all along the line. Many articles which are now taxed will come in free, and the revenue to run the government will be raised by the increase of the tax on beer and other luxuries. I think a bill will be passed to levy an income tax, and that the State bank tax will be repealed." Speaker Crisp left on the 10 o'clock train for Atlanta.

Mr. Campbell's Views.

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.-The following telegram was received to-night by Melville E. Stone from James E. Campbell, who is at his home in Hamilton, O .:

"Replying to your inquiry, I believe that the result of the election shows that Ohio was merely sharing in the general shaking up which the Democratic party is receiving all along the line, from Massachusetts to Iowa. The business depression is attributed by the partisans and unthinking portion of our people to the present federal administration. The ex-soldiers are somewhat moved by the needless fear that they will be not justly and liberally dealt with. There is a natural ebbing of the tide from the great flow of last year. There are scre and disappointed applicants for office. These are the causes of the defeat. The fear of tariff revision had nothing to do with it whatever.'

VIEWS OF EDITORS.

Comments of the Press on the Results of the Elections. The defeat of the Democratic party throughout the country must be assumed to be due to rather Democratic defections than to Republican gains. The whole elections have turned upon national issues. Yet the people have voted heretofore to reform the unconstitutional tariff in the interest of those who wished to reform it in the direction of a tariff for revenue only. -New York Evening Sun.

It was natural to expect that the financial and industrial depression through which we have just passed would hurt the party in power, which is always, however unjustly, considered as responsible for the condition of the country, although com-mon sense would suggest that the party was not responsible for the business condition. The people do not always reason, however, and the party which has charge of the government always loses in a year of depression and stagnation. The Democracy, therefore, had reason to expect losses. -New Orleans Times-Democrat.

In Brooklyn, as in the State, the result has not been a Democratic defeat and a Republican victory. New York is still Democratic. Brooklyn is still Democratic. In the State and in our sister city the victory has been won by honest and sincere Democrats over those who have injured the party by objectionable methods and bad nominations. Democracy will be all the stronger in the future from the purification it has received and from the proofs its adherents have given of a determination to promote good government and to put only honest men into positions of public trust. -New York Evening World.

The Leader has hoisted the name of Governor McKinley at the head of its columns for the consideration of the Republican party of the United States, not because he is a son of Ohio, but because we believe him to most fully represent the all important national interests that will be involved in the campaign of 1896. The momentous campaign which closed Tuesday night was waged entirely upon the great issue of protection or McKinleyism. Mc-Kinley is backed for the presidency by one thousand majority of the voters of Ohio. It is believed throughout Ohio that this is the meaning of Tuesday's verdict, and we believe that the Republicans of the Nation will so accept it.-Cleveland Leader.

Certainly there were local questions involved that militated against the Democracy, but conceding much to the effect of such issues, the truth remains clear as the sun above us that a cause operating over a wider field than the boundaries of any State, a national cause, to be plain, was at the bottom of Democratic defeat in New York, Iowa and Massachusetts, and of the phenomenal majority of the Republicans in Ohio. Nor does it require the eye of a seer to see that cause. The American people are disgusted with the bickerings and dissensions of the Democratic chiefs, and with the imbecility of Democratic leadership in the Senate during the past two months.—New Orleans States.

The delay of Congress, convened in extraordinary session, to take any action for the mitigation of the distress caused by the financial panic has been the worst blow yet to the Democratic party. The entire country was in the throes of a terrible industrial and commercial depression. The President called Congress together to take measures for the relief of the general distress, but Congress did absolutely nothing but wrangle for eighty-eight days. Disputes, flerce, noisy, foolish and useless to the last degree occupied every hour of those twelve weeks, while the commercial, industrial and financial interests of sixty millions of people were permitted to go to wreck and ruin, without one single act of Congress to provide a remedy.-New Orleans Picayune.

What the victory means: It means that the Republican party is not dead. It means that bossism will not be tolerated in New York city, Brooklyn, Gravesend, Buffalo, Jersey City and Cincinnati. It means that the Republican party in this State can elect any good Republican to the governorship next year. It means that the people "change." It means that protection is still the paramount issue and that any good Republican, from McKinley down, can be that followed, and were invariably ad- elected to the presidency in 1896. It means that fearless magistrates will be sustained by the people, whether in thicago or Brooklyn, and it means that David B. Hill has discovered the limit of the forbearance of the people of the State of New York. -New York Commercial Advertiser.

> By a majority certainly large enough for all practical purposes Mr McKinley succeeds himself as Governor of Ohio, To those closely in touch with events in the Ohio campaign this is not a surprise. While the vote given Mr. McKinley by no means indicates either personal or party strength in more stirring political times to come, it is patent that Ohio has just been the field of a preliminary presidential skirmish-a plan to that effect was long ago mapped out, and circumstances have conspired to render it apparently successful. Representing an economic idea that has naturally drawn to his canvass a powerful element in his party from all sections of the country and possessed of an ambitious aspiration of his own, Mr. Me-Kinley has waged a war of ballots never equaled in the political history of this State. That misstatements and misconstructions indulged in throughout all industrial sections of the State have assisted to a present success is proved by the returns; in what manner this will affect his relations with the prize of 1896 remains to be seen.-Cleveland Plain Dealer.

> If the result of the great political landslide of Tuesday demonstrates one thing more than another, it is when really great principles or great economical interests are involved in a contest the merely partisan yoke hangs loosely around the public neck. Thousands of Republicans voted the Democratic ticket a year ago in the belief that the times were propitious for a change. This year thousands of Democrats cast off their partisan allegiance and supported the men and measures of the Republican party. In Massachusetts, in Onio, in Iowa the tarful influence in maintaining and increasing Republican majorities. The great Republican victory in New York, however, furnishes the most impressive lesson of the day. It is a lesson that, if wisely conned, the Democracy of the Empire State may profit by. Never was a party more despotically imposed upon by its bosses in defiance of public sentiment, of political sagacity, of the judgment of honest men, and never has machine dictation been more effectually or deservedly rebuked.-Wash-

At last the people of this State have had a free and untrammeled opportunity to express their opinion of David Bennett Hill, 'Blue Eyed Billy" Sheehan, Edward Murphy, Governor Flower, Croker and Mc-Laughlin and the kind of politics they represent. The issue was plain and the candidate embodied clearly and completely the political principles and practices of his backers. Maynard stood, as they have stood for eight years in the State, for criminal politics. To emphasize the meaning of his candidacy, Sheehan and McLaughlin's subboss, McKane, made special demonstrations of what criminal politics was by organizing the criminals and leading them in open violation of the laws. The people had no excuse for not comprehending the issue that was presented, and their verdict leaves no room for doubt as to their capacity for ferming a judgment. The result of the elections outside New York, where agent, that can produce only good results. | special and peculiar conditions existed It's a powerful, invigorating tonic, and a growing out of the nomination of Maynard, must be ascribed mainly to the imancial panic of last summer and the consequent hard times. What next? Evidently the Democrats must go straight forward and do that which they were commanded to do when Mr. Cleveland and the present Congress were elected .- New York Evening

CHICAGO, Nov. 8 .- By a rear-end collision on the Chicago, Rock Island' & Pacific railroad, this evening, at Seventy-first street, three people were killed and many injured. Passenger train No. 11, known as the limited vestibule express, crashed into the rear end of a Blue Island accommodation, badly wrecking two coaches and the engine of the limited. leg broken. The Blue Island accommodation is scheduled to leave the city a few minutes ahead of the limited train, and both pulled out on time. The accommodation stopped at Seventy-first street to receive and let off passengers. Close behind it was the limited express bearing down on it at the rate, it is said, of twenty miles an hour. A heavy fog had settled over the city early in the evening, and it was almost impossible to clearly discern signal lights. The engine of the express train plowed its way into the rear coach of the accommodation. The car was picked up and carried forward, so great was the momentum, and was driven with terrible force into the end of the second coach from the rear. The explosion of a lamp ignited the woodwork in the debris and the fire soon began to spread rapidly. An alarm was at once sent to the fire department, but before any of the engines had arrived the majority of the dead and wounded had been taken from the wreck, some of them, however, being badly burned The engine attached to the limited express had been partly demolished, and, pouring from one of its escape pipes was a constant stream of scalding steam. This made the work of rescue almost an impossibility seum of curiosities. He has explored the at times. Men were driven back time and time again and often the workmen were slightly scalded. The two trains leave the main depot ten minutes apart. Owing to the dense fog both had fallen behind time six minutes at Englewood. The suburban train makes three short stops between Englewood and Seventy-first street, while the through train makes none. The limited to-night gained on the suburban train after leaving Englewood, and struck it before the signals could be discerned through the fog.

"CANNON BALL" WRECK. Fatal Accident on the Wabash Railway at Moberly, Mo. MOBERLY, Mo., Nov. 8 .- A wreck on the Wabash here just before last midnight demolished most of the Chicago-Kansas City "cannon ball" train. The train ran into an open switch. Fireman Malone was scalded to death and engineer Robinson was badly hurt. A number of passengers were injured, but none seriously. It is probable that the accident was due to train-wreckers. The train left Kansas City last night and the accident occurred just as it entered the vards here. The engine and baggage car were thrown on their sides and the front part of one passenger coach was smashed. It is reported that no lock could be found on the switch when the railroad people looked for it, and that the switch was half Advertising as an Investment.

E. H. Heinrichs, in Engineering Magazine. The advertising rates in the best publications are very low. Many people, and even some advertisers of experience, will doubt this statement, but that does not detract from its correctness. The trouble is we expect too much from an advertisement. It must not be supposed that a single advertisement, for which perhaps $50 has been paid, is going to fill a store with customers for a year to come, thus bringing a profit on the investment of probably ten hundred per cent. Most people are satisfied if they make 100 per cent. on their invested capital. and everybody should commend them for their modesty. Why, then, should a larger profit be expected from an advertisement than from any other investment?

They Wear the Chrysanthemum. Washington Post. Now that the chrysanthemum is blooming like the cabbage, in size at least, while similarity in color must sometimes be confessed, a new name has been coined for the correctly dressed gentlemen who adorn their button-holes with blossoms the size of a dinner plate. They are called the "coldslaw chappies," of course only by the common herd, who have no aesthetic tastes, or, perhaps, no credit with the florist. Still the phrase sticks, and lest any one should seek to escape by wearing a yellow blossom, they | preserves, and it is probable they were are termed "cold slaw with mustard."

A Useful Tariff.

Philadelphia Evening Telegraph. The New York Evening Post is much exercised in mind by the discovery that American lead pencils are sold in foreign markets at prices which European makers cannot compete with, and that, as a consequence, the German and other pencil manufacturers are being driven out of the trade. This is a sad tale, indeed, and the Post tells it with pathetic solemnity enough to melt a heart of stone. But doleful as it is, there is more to be told, and the sequel is even sadder than the story. These heartless American maunfacturers are not satisfled with driving their German rivals out of the market and leaving them to die of starvation in the most unfeeling, not to say discourteous, fashion, but they must actually go and riot and revel in the luxury of protective duties on their productions amounting to a small fortune on each gross of pencils, with an ad valorem of tremendous proportion on the back of that. Was there ever anything so iniquitous? These abominable maunfacturers not only have the impudence and the cruelty to undersell their foreign rivals in foreign markets, but they actually flaunt in the faces of the unfortunates a double imposition of pro-tective duties besides. That is tough enough, to be sure, and, in the estimation of our contemporary, the circumstance seems to afford a trenchant argument against protection. There is one reflection it will suggest to unprejudiced minds, however, that may have some bearing in the opposite direction-namely, the reflection that but for protection there never would have been a pencil made in America.

TIME FOR SHOUTING

Indiana Laborers Rejoice in Tuesday's Sweeping Victory.

Cooprider Murder Trial on the Boards at Brazil-Colonel De Hart's Reception in Honor of Tippecanoe.

ELKHART, Ind., Nov. 8.-This city is widely known for its manufacturing interests. In consequence the suffering here during the existing business and industrial depression has been very severe. Hundreds of men and factory girls have been out of employment, many being scarcely able to keep the wolf from the door. Skilled workmen have been glad to perform any kind of inferior labor. Therefore, it is not to be wondered at that the news of the Republican victories in Ohio and other States is received here with an enthusiasm not surpassed by that of any national campaign. Men in all departments of business and lator already see the dawning of renewed prosperity consequent upon possible supremacy of Republican principles in governmental affairs and are unlimited in their expressions of approbation of the fact.

Still Rejofcing at Seymour.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. SEYMOUR, Ind., Nov. 8 .- The faces of Republicans are all wreathed in smiles today over the grand victory which has been achieved in States which held elections Tuesday. Chairman John K. Gowdy, of the State committee, was in the city and heard the good news. After midnight last night the band was routed out and there was a parade. Mr. Gowdy joined in with the throng and was one of the principal movers in the celebration. To-night a drum corps is keeping up the racket.

IN MEMORY OF TIPPECANOE. Reception by Col. and Mrs. DeHart and a Lecture on the Famous Battle. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 8.-Anniversary of the battle of Tippecanoe, the famous fight made by Gen. William H. Harrison with the Indians at Prophetstown, seven miles above Lafayette, was celebrated last night at Tecumseh trail, a beautiful spot on the banks of the Wabash river, three and a half miles above the city. The high bluffs which overlook the river at this point and give a magnificent view of the surrounding country belong to Col. R. P. De Hart, who has had the grounds nicely cleaned from underbrush and erected thereon a number of "tepees." The grounds were lighted up nicely last night, and about one hundred leading citizens, including a number of clergymen and their wives, accepted the hospitalities of Col. and Mrs. De Hart. Hon. B. Wilson Shith, ex-postmaster, delivered a lecture on 'The Battle of Tippecanoe." In the preparation of his lecture Mr. Smith has taken great pains, obtaining every possible account of the battle, including the official report of General Harrison, and from many personal visits to the battlefield, and measurements taken, was able to give his hearers a very authentic account of this fight. Mr. Smith declared it to be a burning shame that eighty years had passed without there being erected a monument somewhere on the field. After a careful research of the history of the birth of the famous chief. Tecumseh, Mr. Smith said that the common opinion that Tecumseh was a triplet was an error. The prophet and his brother were twins. It is the intention of Col. De Hart to annually have the battle anniversary commemorated. He has brought together one of the largest collections of Indian and other relics in the State-a veritable murewarded by the finding of many strange and valuable relics of the early times when the red man roamed at will over Indiana. COOPRIDER MURDER TRIAL.

Miss Nancy Luther, a Beautiful Blonde, Conspicuous in Court.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. BRAZIL, Ind., Nov. 8.-The famous Cooprider-Kress murder trial was commenced in the Superior Court this morning. Extra coaches had to be attached to incoming trains from the south to accommodate the large number of persons from Clay City, Middlebury and other points. The court room was packed with relatives and friends of the interested parties. The trial promises to be highly interesting. Miss Nancy Luther, the young woman over whom the trouble occurred, was present and sat behind the murderer, who, it is claimed, was at the time of the killing betrothed to her. She is a good-looking blonde. She was closely wrapped in a sealskin sacque, and wore a sad expression on her face. The murderer's parents were too feeble to be present at the opening of the trial. They are very old, and it is claimed that the mental worry they have endured since the son's crime has greatly impaired their health.

Tried to Kill Himself Because His Mother Didn't Like His Bride.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. HUNTINGTON, Ind., Nov. 8. - Samuel Krueger, a young barber, and Miss Melvina Bolin, both of this city, were quietly married last night. To-day young Krueger returned to his home and informed his mother of his marriage, who, being displeased, did not congratulate him. This so preyed on the young man's mind that he went to his room, and after writing farewell letters to his wife and mother took a large dose of morphia with suicidal intend. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Nov. 8.-What at first seemed a serious attempt at poisoning turns out to have been only an error in ccoking. Rev. A. R. Stark, the new pastor of the First Baptist Church of this city, has been boarding for some weeks with Mrs. Bryan and daughter, on West Broadway. Monday night they had a supper of fried chicken, and among other things tomato preserves. During the evening all ate heartily of hickory nuts. Along in the night all three were taken suddenly ill with vomiting and all the symptoms of violent poisoning. A physician was summoned, who at once suspected lead poisoning. Rev. Stark and Mrs. Bryan were the most seriously affected. The only source of lead poison obtainable was from the tomato cooked in a tin vessel. All are still suffering, although now out of danger and im-five hundred of its old employes. The company refused to sign the wage scale, but entered into another agreement which was satisfactory to both sides. President M. M. Garland, of the association, was called here from Pittsburg, and brought about the settlement. The White-river iron and steel works resumed operations to-night, and the Muncie Iron and Steel Company is preparing to start the new mill that has been finished for several months, but has stood idle. The three mills will employ one thousand men.

The Saloonkeepers Will Fight.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Nov. 8 .- From the present indications the saloon men of this city are going to test the validity of the city screen ordinance, which requires the removal of screens and blinds during the hours that the law prohibits the sale of liquor. They are elated over the recent decision of the Supreme Court that they could keep up screens during hours that it was lawful to sell, and an effort is to be made to smash the other also. Jack Kelly has purposely pulled down his blinds in order to get arrested, and he was promptly brought before the Mayor, who fined him $50. An appeal was then taken to the Circuit Court.

Rather Remarkable Run.

Special to the Indianpolis Journal. SEYMOUR, Ind., Nov. 8.-A remarkable run was made by engine No. 53 on the B. & O. S. W. railroad Tuesday afternoon. Engineer Rol Emery and fireman Frank Day were coming east on the local freight. Eighteen miles from this city the tender jumped the track and had to be left. Engineer Emery pumped the boiler full of water and a few shovelsful of coal were thrown into the firebox. They started to this city without a tank. When they arrived here the fire was out, and there was no water in the boiler, but they nevertheless had twenty-five pounds of steam when they put the engine into the roundhouse.

Elopement and Marriage. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

GAS CITY, Ind., Nov. 8 .- On Monday morning "Art" Hill, aged eighteen, and Gertrude Wooter, aged sixteen, left Jonesboro on a Big Four train. On reaching the Michigan State line they alighted and were married, returning to Jonesboro the next day. The parents and friends of both bride and groom objected to the match on account of their extreme youth, but otherwise there were no objections. On returning home they were received cordially, and the forgiveness of the parents bestowed on them. Both belong to prominent and respected families.

Free of Saloons Twenty Years. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

FARMLAND, Ind., Nov. 8.-Twenty years ago a man named Donavan, who was running a saloon in this city, had his place visited by unknown persons who demolished the outfit and left the owner a notice to leave town. Since that time there has not been a licensed saloon in Farmland. nor would the commisioners grant a license. Yesterday applications were filed in the county court for licenses to run two saloons here. The better class of citizens are waging war against the granting of a license, and will do all in their power to stop it.

BETTER THAN A CLERKSHIP. A Discharged Treasury Employe Made Money at the Fair. Washington Post. One Washington woman has made

small fortune through being discharged from the departments. Now she resides in Chicago, is adding rapidly to her wealth. and doubtless before long will be pointed to as one of its enterprising citizens. She was employed in the treasury, though that is not essential to the plot of the story, and in the general out-turning last spring she lost her place, inefficiency, the alleged cause, and politics the real one, as usual, She was not too inefficient, however, to get a good place soon afterward with the world's fair in Chicago, just opening, and she held down a $1,200 job for a couple of months, but seeing that at the end of that time she would be no better off than she was before, she cast about for something permanent to do, and decided that she would educate Chicago up to adding Maryland biscuits to its regular pork menu. She came originally from down on the eastern shore, and was well qualified for the task. Seeing about that time an advertisement for a patent biscuit beater just put on the mar-ket she opened negotiations with the inventor to handle it at the fair, and was fortunate in securing a good place in the Woman's Building for its display. Then she got up a lot of finger board placards, all pointing toward the scene of operations with the label "Baker & Co., Maryland Biscuit, Thumpum's Patent Beater on Exhibition." Baker was her own name, the company was entirely imaginary, and Thumpum was the man who made the beater. The scheme was a success from the first day. All of the northeast contingent visiting at the fair poured in to assuage their homesickness with beat biscuit, and Chicago took most kindly to the new delicacy. Mrs. B. soon had her hands full of orders and had to get a lot of assistants in the concoction of the biscuit. The swell restaurants took up the fad and ran Maryland biscuits as a special feature of their bills of fare. By the time the fair was nearing its close Mrs. B. had $2,000 to her credit in bank, the first bank account she had ever owned, and Mrs. Potter Palmer, who had taken a great interest in the affair, had promised her if she would take a place in Chicago and continue to supply the growing demand for beat biscuit she would see to it that she did not want for customers among the elite of Chicago households. The enterprising Washington woman has taken up the offer, and is now settled in the Lake city with the prospect of being much bet-
